INSTITUTE OF HISTORICAL STUDIES
ANNUAL CONFERENCE 2023-24

CONCEPT NOTE

Environmental Crisis in the Modern Context

In modern industrial and urban situation, environmental crisis has emerged as a major problem. This gives a reminder that unbridled industrial and urban growth is not always a blessing. Environment is a major issue and it tends to become a casualty. Eco-friendly industrial growth is more desirable as the whole world is concerned with this sustainable growth. This theme is the focal point of this year's Conference and case studies are invited to study this sustainable growth.

The society wants to ensure that people can survive in peace and harmony in changed circumstances. It requires a lot of thought and planning so that the nation and the country survive without any want of crisis. These are the salient features of this year's Conference not to run away with wanton industrial and urban growth.

Papers are invited on these symbiotic aspects of industrial and urban growth. Case studies are invited to highlight the crisis in civilization. After all people and society must survive and at the same time these should be a sustainable growth and development. Case studies will be most welcome by the concerned scholars.
